

Travel management planning is a high priority in the federal government. This is the process by which agencies –

- Inventory & map travel route locations

[miles, acres, administration boundaries]

- Assess route conditions

[suitability, soil types, required maintenance]

- Identify routes & designate uses

[open/closed/limited, permitted and non-permitted uses]

- Communicate multi-use of public lands

[signs, maps, permit processes]

- Monitor, document & regulate route use and development

[field presence, GPS and photographs]
